DEPARTMENTS

MERCHANDISING DEPARTMENT

Specialized workers assigned to determine fabric consumption and trims needed for the product. The department adheres to the clients' demands and inquires through developing initial samples all the way to the pre-production samples, based on clients' requests and modifications. The department settles delivery dates based on the plan requested, and the quantities demanded. After reaching a point of equilibrium between both the facility and the client, the merchandising officers forward the pre-productions samples to the production stage.

PLANNING

An incorporated department that coordinates all the production procedures, including the time frame needed for production, the usage of the fabrics, and the packing list of the final goods for the shipment.

SAMPLING

The facility has a specialized sampling room that coherently flows with the clients' preferences for the requested designs and specs. In further development, the clients have the legitimacy of making the final approvals of the invented samples before initiating production. The sampling department forwards the approved pre-production samples to start the production of the requested quantities.

PATTERN & CUTTING DEPARTMENT

Assigned designers approve the final style of the commodity through a chain of decisions passed from the previous departments.
